DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 2, 9, 12 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s), or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form, or rewrite the claim(s) in independent form. In each case, the claim appears to require fewer components than the claim on which it is dependent. Claim 2 does not indicate the amount of the acceptable component; Claims 9 and 12 do not indicate that composition contains said component, copper, selenium or manganese.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Boulos et al. (US Pat. 6,914,073) in view of Murad (US 2002/0127256).

Boulos et al. disclose composition for benefiting cardiovascular health, including slowing the progression of atherosclerosis containing lysine, proline, arginine, Vitamin C, magnesium, green tea, selenium, copper and manganese which can be administered orally as a tablet or capsule which are formulated using various excipients (Column 3, lines 40-55, Column 6, lines 10-20, 40-46, Column 7, lines 65-67, Column 9, lines 8-26, Columns 11, 12). It is disclose that the composition can also contain Vitamin A, Vitamin D, Thiamin, Riboflavin, Niacin, Biotin and Pantothenic Acid (Column 6, lines 30-38).

Gavish et al. disclose that high levels of lipoprotein (a) is associated with atherosclerotic disease and that administration of N-acetylcystine was effective in lowering plasma levels of lipoprotein (a) (Abstract).

Tedeschi et al. disclose that both Green Tea and vitamin C have antiinflammatory activity (Page 435).

The prior art discloses the combination of lysine, proline, arginine, Vitamin C, magnesium, green tea, selenium, copper and manganese for slowing the progression of atherosclerosis and benefiting cardiovascular health. The difference between the prior art and the claimed invention is that the prior art does not expressly disclose the treatment of inflammation or the addition of acetyl-cysteine. However, the prior art amply suggests the same as the prior art discloses that acetyl cysteine is effective in lowering high lipoprotein (a) plasma levels, which is a risk factor for atherosclerosis and that Vitamin C and Green Tea have anti-inflammatory activity. As such, it would have been well within the skill of and one of ordinary skill in the art would have expected that the combination of acetyl cysteine would add to the anti-atherosclerotic activity of the prior art composition and that the prior art composition would also be effective in treating inflammation.

Therefore, the claimed invention, as a whole, would have been prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, because every element of the invention has been collectively taught by the combined teachings of the references.
